

Association of Academics for Social Justice (AASJ)

About the Association

The concept of Social Justice has always evoked ideas of individual freedom and equality of opportunity which are together necessary to build and strengthen social cohesion. The aspiration towards Social Justice can be counterproductive if the underlying problem and extent of multi-dimensional inequality is not identified and addressed accordingly. The Association of Academics for Social Justice (AASJ) is a collective of academicians, researchers and other stakeholders to promote social justice through an academic engagement. It aims to advance the role of teaching, learning and advocacy in research and generate wider interdisciplinary debates for the cause of social justice. Therefore, the central agenda of AASJ is “to interpret the magnitude and dimension of group inequality in all aspects of human life, to examine the reason of inequality and lack of individual freedom, its analyses in the consequences of inequality on freedom and search for solution”. As a “Collective” we come together to organize “Inaugural Conference” of the Association.

We look forward to your Membership to strengthen the AASJ.
